

特异型雅思作文

说明文题库:

1.Many young people leave school with a negative attitude. Why does this happen? What do you think can encourage young people to have a positive attitude?

2.It is generally believed that education is of vital importance to individual development and well-being of society. What should education consist of to fulfill both these functions?

3.In many countries schools have many problems of students' behavior. What are the causes and what are your solutions to these problems?

4.People are paying less attention to basic science. What do you think about the causes of this trend and give your solutions.

5.People today can perform the everyday tasks such as shopping, banking or even business transactions, without meeting others face to face. What effects will this phenomenon have on individuals and society as a whole?

6.We can get knowledge from news. But some people think we should not trust the journalists. And what do you think are the important qualities that a journalist should have?

7.Today, there are more images of disasters and violence in the media. What are the causes and what are your solutions?

8.Some people feel that entertainers< e.g. film stars, pop musicians or sports stars> are paid too much money. Do you agree or disagree? Which other types of job should be highly paid?

9.In the past, many people had skills such as making their own clothes and doing repairs to things in the house. In many countries, nowadays, skills like these are disappearing. Why do you think this change is happening? Is this also true in your country?

10.In the past, people repaired broken items and continued to use them. But nowadays people throw away things that are broken. What are the causes of this phenomenon and what are its effects?

11.What are the factors influencing job satisfaction? How realistic is job satisfaction for all employers?

12.An increasing number of people choose to live in big cities. What problems will this cause? What can the government do to solve these problems?

13.There is not enough respect for the elderly people. What are the causes and what problems does this phenomenon create?

14.Happiness is very important to individuals but it is very hard to define. What is your definition of happiness?

15.Charities and organizations always give special names to particular days such as 'National Children's Day' and 'National Non-smoking Day'. What are the causes of these particular days? How effective are they?

16.In some countries the average weight of people is increasing and their levels of health and fitness are decreasing. What do you think are the causes of these problems and what measures should be taken to solve them?

17. There is not enough respect for elderly people. What are the causes and what are your solutions?

18. What are the causes of water scarcity and how can we solve this problem?

19. In the future, fossil fuels such as coal and oil will be used up. How can we save on resources? What other forms of energy are available?

20. Some movies increase the amount of bad driving. What can be done to encourage young people to drive more safely?

21. Many scientists believe that now we can study the behavior of three-year-old children to see whether they will grow up to be criminals. To what extent do you think the crime is a product of human nature and how can we prevent the children from growing up to be criminals?

22. Wild animals are still not protected by humans. What are the causes and what are the solutions?

23. People need news nowadays, but people doubt that whether the news reported by the journalists are true. To what extent do you believe in the journalists? What qualities does a journalist need?

24. Many people stay off working and studying. What reasons cause stress, how to solve it? Refer to your own experiences.

25. The world of work is changing rapidly. Working conditions today are not the same as before and people no longer rely on taking one job for life. Discuss the possible causes of these changes and give your suggestions on how people should prepare for work in the future.

26. Many people say that we have developed into a “throw-away society”, because we are filling up our environment with so many plastic bags and rubbish that we cannot fully dispose of. To what degree do you agree with this opinion and what measures can you recommend reducing this problem?

27. Compare the advantage and disadvantage, choose three of the following items as media for communication information, give your preferred one that you think is the most effective. comic, books, film, radio, television, theatre.

28. Many parents use punishment to teach the difference between right and wrong to kids. Many think punishment is necessary to help children learn the distinction. What degree do you agree or disagree? What kind of punishment do you think parents and teachers can use?

29. Happiness is considered very important in our life. Why it is difficult to define? What factors are in achieving happiness?

30. Since cities have changed a lot, the size of the cities has grown enormously. Discuss the causes and consequences of the enormous size of cities.

31. It is said that today people's lives are becoming increasingly stressful. What are the reasons of the occurrence of stress and how to solve the problem?

32. There are a lot of serious problems posed by the student's attitudes in the schools of many countries. What factors contribute to the serious problem and what recommendations do you suggest improving the situation?

33. Traditional arts civilized a nation. Do you think government should subsidize musicians, artists, actors or drama companies? What should a government do?

34. Recently we are facing increasing number of cars, which poses great threat to the pedestrians and cyclists. What's more, a lot of parks need to be sacrificed as a result of the construction of railways and superhighways. Do you agree or disagree? What do you think is the best solution to satisfy residents to their heart's content?

35. Over past 50 years, young people gain status and power but old people have lost. What is the cause and is it a good development or bad development?

(Old addition): Nowadays there are various methods to relieve the pressure in modern life. Some read or exercise, others work in their gardens. What do you think are the best ways of reducing stress?

36. With the fast pace of globalization, the whole world has become a global village with combination of different cultures. What are the reasons for losing a variety of languages and cultures? Think of some solution to alleviate the problem?

37. Research indicates that the characteristics we were born with have much more influence on our personality and development than experiences we have had in our life. Which do you think is the major influence?

38. The gap of living in cities and countryside has become wider and wider. What are the reasons in your country to lead to the situation and how can the difference be reduced? State your opinion with relevant examples and personal experience.

39. What are the purposes of places such as museums and how should they be funded?

40. Young drug abuse is a serious problem nowadays in many countries, what are the reasons for this and what can be done to combat it?

41. Transport system has been developing at an amazing rate all over the world. Now please discuss the traffic situation in your country. What are the causes of the present serious traffic problem? And how to solve the problem of heavy traffic?

42. Juvenile delinquency is becoming more and more serious in modern society. Please discuss the causes and find out some possible solutions.

43. The gap of living between the city and the countryside is becoming larger and larger. Please analyze the causes for this phenomenon and provide relevant recommendations.

44. The diversity of language and culture is disappearing in modern society. What are the causes and how to solve the problem?

范文库

如何解决垃圾问题

The roads are dotted with trash, the railways are littered with decaying garbage and our cities are disgraced by plastic bags. Lately, the worsening rubbish problem has aroused people's wide concern. Some hold the belief that it is an overstatement to claim that people have formed a "throw away" society, and that they just discard the used items, which is necessary. Others, however, firmly contend that people do develop a habit of throwing things away. Personally, I firmly side with the latter.

It is no doubt that our cities are on the way towards becoming a huge landfill. To begin with, people are in the habit of littering. Nowadays, people tend to discard old items like outdated furniture and worn-out appliance, which are actually recoverable. Furthermore, due to the inadequate facilities of garbage collection, people throw away their refuse everywhere at will. In addition, rubbish is in rapid increase. In the first place the quickening tempo of modern lifestyle gives rise to people's favor of disposable items for sake of convenience, which greatly adds the amount of rubbish. In the second place, the development of science and technology also contributes to it. It generates new product in a more frequent way, which makes the old ones cast aside as rubbish at a quicker pace. Consequently, our cities are decorated with trash..

In view of the severity of the issue, we should adopt immediate measure to address it. First of all, the government should play a leading role. It ought to bring in strong anti-littering laws, backed by heavy penalties and effective enforcement, to tackle the littering behaviors. Also, officials should make good use of mass media to promote the public's awareness of environmental protection, making sure that everyone will become a conscious environment protection. Additionally, scientists can develop efficient technologies to degrade and recycle the rubbish. Research findings reveal that 63% of the refuse nowadays are recycled. Finally, it is essential for schools to attach importance to environmental education, so that every child will become environmentally friendly and get rid of the littering habit.

In conclusion, people's littering habit is turning our communities into a rubbish holder. It is high time that we took joint effort to solve the rubbish problem. Otherwise, we will live with rubbish in the future.

巨型城市的原因

When you look back to the last century, amazingly you will find that not only all world's largestpopulated cities had experienced different population growth rates, but also the difference between the city and the countryside had grown accordingly. Two reasons of mine can examine this tendency as following.

The glamorous city life allures lots of human resources to move to/agglomerate in the city, taking major contribution to the gap. Supporting sentences: In the city, there are many advantages to attract those talented people to settle down—more job opportunities, cultural activities, sporting events, you name them. Therefore, even those well-educated people who are originated from the country intend to lead a dynamic city life instead of returning to face the static country view. If the rural government can work out some favorable policies such as low prices of land occupied for industrial uses, with the combination of low cost of workforce, investors are willing to establish factories in the countryside. The improvement of employment situation will enormously help pull back some intellectuals and lessen the gap.

In the second part, I would mention the factor of transportation. Supporting sentences: The vital resistance of economic development in the countryside is the inconvenient transportation. It has been witnessed in China that almost all leading cities are scattered along the coastline. They take advantages of sea, air and other sophisticated transport facilities to enjoy high economic growth rates. I suggest that the central government should fund on infrastructure for the whole nation, including rural areas, to build up a nationwide transport network. Consequently tourism as well as housing in the countryside will be boosted, and the difference between the city and the country would be minimized.

To sum up, intelligent resources would determine who is the winner or loser of the intense competition; moreover, transit systems also play an important role in developing economy. If both issues were tackled properly in the countryside, gap between the city and the country would never be overwhelming.

城乡差距的原因

范文一：

As the step of economic development accelerates, the gap between the city and the countryside becomes more and more overt, which arouses colossal concerns. Take a further look at the phenomenon, there are three major causes.

Firstly, the insufficiency of investment in the rural areas accounts mainly for the issue. China, for example, covers a very large area. Due to the emphasis on the development in the coastal areas, the government devotes more investment in the large cities, such as Shanghai, Beijing and Guangzhou. The investment, undoubtedly, is repaid by the threefold increase of economy and commerce in these cities. However, this is not the case in the rural areas and the western regions. The lack of investment barriers the productivity and economic development and sharpens the gap between the city and the countryside.

Secondly, the low education level in the rural areas contributes partly to the gap of living. Education is the prime force of productivity. Keeping this in mind, many countries and governments give priority to the development of education. China's education witnessed a rapid growth in the past decade. However, the education level in the countryside still keeps very low. The enrollment of primary schools and secondary schools is much lower compared with the advanced regions, not to mention the developed countries in the world. Without good education, the development of economy and technology would be a dream difficult to be realized.

Finally, the influx of migrant workers to the cities from the countryside deteriorates the undeveloped condition in the rural areas. The life style in the urban areas is very attractive to the people in the countryside. To seek more working opportunities, many people abandon the fertile lands and leave them uncultivated. If the situation continues, it will lead to serious unbalance of economic and regional development.

To sum up, only when the government renders more concerns over the issue, can the gap between the cities and the countryside be bridged.

范文二：

The living standard gap between city and countryside is bigger and bigger. In my country, dozens of rural young people have been absorbed high salary and comfortable living in the big city. So more and more young people select to work in the city and abandon farming for a better future. In this essay we will examine the problem of the increasing living standard gap between city and countryside and the solutions, such as improving educational level and economy in the country.

The main reason is the different standard of education between the city and the countryside. Because of poverty, dozens of country students lose the chance to study at school. So country people's educational level is too low to find jobs of high salary. Commonly high salary requires high educational level. Manual labor means low salary: therefore, the country people will be poorer. It will become a bad circle.

Another reason is that economic development is not balanced between city and countryside. Such as both Traffic and transport are not convenient, information to be received slowly and industrial institution is too simple, all of them are the direct and primary reasons to induce this kind of problem that the growth of countryside's economy less than city's.

As result of the gap in living standard between the city and the countryside, the outlook is somewhat grim. People already realize this problem exists and are trying to solve it.

For one solution, developed cities should spend plenty of money on building country schools and helping poor country family that they have the ability to support their children to go to school.

The second solution is uniting city and based on country conditions of nature to progress local economy specially. In most of the countryside, plenty of natural resources aren't utilized and developed. On the contrary, developing cities need lots of resources. They can help each other.

The important thing is that developed cities should provide help to change the country, in order to reduce the living standard gap between the city and the countryside.

Over the past 50 years, young people gain status and power but old people have lost. What is the cause and is it a good development or bad development?

The knowledge-based society witnessed great changes over the past decades. Many young people have taken the place of the old ones and gained political and financial power in the world. Bill Gates, the director of Microsoft, Tony Blair, Prime Minister of Britain and Bush, President of the USA give us vivid illustration. From my point of view, the trend is natural and inevitable.

Young people are energetic and vigorous. Most of them have received formal education in university, where they acquired abundant knowledge and experience, which are quite essential to their future career. Compared with young people, old people's knowledge is out-dated, which does not fit in with the development of the current society. Old people react more slowly than young people, who can always make quick judgments and prompt decisions.

Furthermore, young people are more open-minded than old people who have a tendency of conservatism. Therefore, young people can adapt themselves to the changeable world more easily.

Obviously, this trend brings about both advantages and disadvantages. On the one hand, young leaders and powers can inject vigor and new hopes to the world, which not only benefits the development of global economy, but also establishes multi-lateral relations between the countries in the world. On the other hand, young people still lack adequate experience and skills to deal with sophisticated national problems and international relations. As a result, old people often criticize many young leaders in the world for lack of tactics. Some young people are very radical when faced with trouble. They still have a lot of things to learn.

Generally, old people should offer youngsters opportunities to practice their abilities and talents. At the same time, young people should learn from old ones modestly and make themselves more admirable.

范文分析:

开头段

(1) In present-day society, the human race is advancing at an staggering rate in a host of arenas.

(2) However, attending all the benefits created by high-tech innovations are some sufferings; and the lack of fresh water is manifest among them.

(3) A recent survey conducted by Greenpeace revealed that over two thirds of the nations in the world were afflicted with severe water shortage. (4) Hence, it is essential that we ascertain the causes of this phenomenon and identify the effective solutions.

主体段1

As I see it, the causes of the present water crisis are multiple.

(1) First of all, it is generally arguable that the population explosion is the root cause of the crisis.

(2) To illustrate, over the past half century, the world population has more than doubled and this growth rate shows no sign of slowing down; therefore, household and industrial use of water has been shooting up since the end of World War II.

(3) Further, the widespread deterioration of the Earth's ecosystem is a major cause of this situation.

(4) For instance, currently a vast number of factories dump their waste into rivers and lakes, which seriously undermines the world's ecosystem.

(5) Finally, the overexploitation of water resources plays a pivotal role in water shortage.

(6) Obviously, today only in very few countries do the citizens have the awareness of the importance of saving water and using water properly. As a consequence, a vast amount of fresh water is wasted on a daily basis.

主体段2

Given the severity of water shortage, we have no option but to take stringent measures to address this problem.

(1) To begin with, governments in all countries should give priority to the controlling of the staggering increase of the population.

(2) More specifically, it is essential that other nations learn from China's success in curbing its population surge over the past two decades.

(3) Then, the concept of sustainable development should be propagated in the international community.

(4) Indeed, any form of overexploiting natural resources must be forbidden while preservation of the ecosystem should be respected, honored and funded.

(5) Last but not least, man must do his utmost to find alternative sources of fresh water.

(6) For example, research has proved that we can transform seawater into drinking water with the help of modern technology

结尾段

(1) In sum, causes of the shortage of fresh water are manifold.

(2) Therefore, we should take effective steps, including birth control, promotion of sustainable development and research about new water resources, to alleviate this modern-day scourge.

The internet has transformed the way information is shared and consumed, but it has also created problems that did not exist before.

What are the most serious problems associated with the internet and what solutions can you suggest?

Model Answer

There is no doubt that the internet has revolutionised communication and information-sharing in the same way that the telegraph and the television did before it. However, societies have had to cope with unanticipated new problems, including crimes which traditional laws are powerless to prevent. This essay will address some of the illegal acts enabled by the internet and propose solutions. (thesis statement)

To begin with, the global scale of the internet means that national laws are no longer adequate to control what happens online. Take restrictions on legal reporting, for example. In some countries, the media are prohibited from revealing details of a defendant's past in case this should prejudice a fair trial. However, such restrictions are no longer enforceable now that information may be freely published in other countries and accessed by all. The only solution here, it seems, is to adopt global standards. Since the internet traverses national borders, the flow of information can only be controlled if all nations agree on what can and cannot be shared.

Another problem concerns anonymity, as internet users can easily conceal their identity and even impersonate others. Many crimes such as identity theft and child abuse result from the ease with which criminals can operate anonymously online. Some have proposed a system of online identification, similar to a passport, which would allow all internet users to be verified and traced. I believe this idea should be explored further, though there are clearly concerns about the security of those who use the internet to protest against oppressive regimes.

In conclusion, the only long-term solution to the problem of internet crime is greater international cooperation. Since the problem is global in scale, the solution must also be global. A new agency of the United Nations should be created to tackle the problems described here.

(298 words, IELTS 8.5)

常用表达练习 Ex: 给下列空白处补充合适的表达

1. It is common knowledge that the Planet Earth is a watery globe; over 70% of it is covered with water bodies---ponds, streams, rivers, lakes and oceans. Indeed, water is a requisite(n.必要条件) to human survival. Against such notion, many a region in the world _____(遭受, 面临困境) severe water shortage, the reasons and tentative (尝试性的) _____(解决办法) of which will be illustrated in this essay.

2. It takes all sorts to make the world. During the lengthy ages of human evolution, diverse cultures have been formed. However, recent decades has seen a _____(趋势) for the world to become a “global village”; cultures are assimilated (同化的) and languages lost. This _____(问题) can _____(归因于) two primary reasons.

3. Technological advances, while bringing forth convenience, also _____(造成) the predicament of minority culture. For example, the Internet, known also as the borderless world, is largely, if not wholly, an English community; the major search engine providers are all American companies. This, inevitably, urges minority language groups to adapt, if they want to get the edge (优势) of the information age.

4. This trend also _____(源自) the globalisation. Never before were countries so closely connected and incorporated with (合并) one another like they are today. Production, research, academic exchanges etc. are all conducted on a worldwide basis. Throughout the world, English is taught at schools as a first-choice second language. In some societies, post-graduate courses are delivered in English, rather than their native languages to make tertiary education more oriented to the globalised economy.

5. Given such a _____(严峻的, 紧迫的) problem, prompt(快速的) actions should be taken to _____(解决, 缓解) it.

6. The _____(解决方法) of this issue are manifold. The government _____(有责任) to augment (提升) the status of native cultures. This can be done, for example, by _____(资助, 出资) culture activities like public performances of traditional art or celebrations at festivals. Educators have their roles to play as well. _____(有必要) that schools offer , and _____(重视) culture-specific courses at primary levels, like history, religion and languages.

7. All summed up, the _____(现象) that cultures are going extinct _____(源自) mainly globalization and technological growth. To curb its further development, _____(必须) that people _____(注意, 关注) it and take actions.

说明文常用表达法

修饰语

形容问题的单词: pressing, severe, disquieting, thorny (adj.多刺的), obsessing, disturbing, worrisome

形容解决方案的单词: feasible, tentative, viable, effective

常用名词

现象、趋势: phenomenon, trend, tendency, status quo (n. 现状), issue, plight, predicament

解决方案: solution, remedy, measure, counter-measure

常用动词

解决, 应对: solve, resolve, tackle with, mow down, iron out, undo, settle, eliminate, eradicate, address, wipe out, battle against, combat, remediate

缓解: relieve, alleviate, mitigate, make the problem abate

面对、被困扰: face a problem, be confronted by a problem, be harassed\obsessed by a problem, be afflicted with, suffer from

造成: lead to, result in, be (partially\largely\primarily) responsible for, answer for, contribute to (好东西), trigger (坏东西), induce (好坏都行), incur (坏的)

源自: result from, stem from, root in, be attributed to, be attributable to, be ascribed to, derive from

开头的 thesis statement: This essay intends to(aims at) analyse (explore, examine, probe into, delve into) two possible causes(reasons) behind the scene (underlying the status quo) as well as propose (put forward) tentative remedies.

其他表达

应该, 必须 { should\ought to
It is desirable\laudable\essential\sensible\advisable that sb.should..
It is imperative that sb. should do sth=must Attempts\efforts\endeavors should be made to
There is a need for sb. to do sth

有责任 { be obliged to be liable for sth
should undertake to do sth
It is incumbent on sb. to do sth.

提高意识	- raise awareness on sth - draw concerns on - raise the profile of sth in public thinking
宣传、告知	- propagate sth by broadcasting public-service advertisements - give more publicity to\ publicise about\ popularise about - keep sb. well-informed about
致力于	- address oneself to sth\ doing sth - be committed to sth. - be dedicated to sth
重视	- give priority to sth\ prioritise sth - attach importance to sth - lay emphasis on sth - list sth high on government agenda
投资	- sponsor sth more heavily - invest more public funds in - more financial supports should be extended to sth - subsidise sth more heavily - pump more subsidies into sth - levy taxes on sth 收税\ impose heavier taxes on\ tax sb. heavily
采用科技	- apply scientific methods to sth - adopt high-tech methods - resort to\ appeal to science for a solution to sth - harness the technical power to do sth
立法	- legislate\draft \formulate laws and regulations - launch\ put forward\implement new policies - regulate public behaviors by law - enforce\ enact law with stronger force - advocate sth by law \ encourage sth by law - put a ban on sth \ prohibit sth \ put a veto upon sth - punish sth severely\ penalise sth with greater force

写作练习

Wild animals are still not protected by humans. What are the causes and what are the solutions?

审题:

原因		解决

开头: 引入题目中间给出的问题

This essay aims at exploring some of the main reasons responsible for such a worrying trend as well as proposing counter-measures to stop it from looming larger.

原因段: 分析问题产生的主要原因, 按从轻到重的顺序排列, 并稍作拓展。

The plight faced by wild animals can be ascribed to a collection of reasons.

To start with, _____

Worse still, the eco-system of the Earth is deteriorating as a result of human activities. To specify, natural vegetation in woods and forests is cleared to create space where communities, shops, schools and car parks are constructed, the aftermath of which is that animals lose habitats and are forced to migrate. Also, due to the use of chemicals---shampoos, washing powders, fertilizers and insecticides etc., water resources are seriously contaminated, which kills aquatic lives. Researches indicate that the acidity levels in the ocean will approach alarming levels in a few decades.

Similarly, with more carbon dioxide released into the atmosphere, the icebergs in the polar regions are melting, thus threatening the survival of animals like the polar bear.

解决段：从不同人身上分析可以做什么（on the part of the government... as far as individuals are concerned），注意使用多样的表示建议的句型。

Disturbing as the status quo may be, prompt actions on both governmental and communal levels will make it change for the better. On the part of the government,

As for individuals, _____

结尾：总结原因和解决方案

To recapitulate, the fact that animals are endangered derives mainly from illegal hunting and the degradation of their habitats. As a response to such thorny problem, it is high time that actions, by both the authorities and members of the public, were taken to stop the problem from going worse.

Wild animals are still not protected by humans. What are the causes and what are the solutions?

The Planet Earth used to be populated by animal species. However, recent decade saw them decline in number at a high speed. Some species, sadly, are even on the verge of extinction. This essay aims at exploring some of the main reasons responsible for such a worrying trend as well as proposing counter-measures to stop it from looming larger.

The plight faced by wild animals can be ascribed to a collection of reasons. To start with, animals are being hunted, mostly illegally, for the pursuit of profits. To cite elephants as an example, their teeth, known as ivory, can be made into luxuriant artifacts, due to which they are killed by hunters with no mercy to the extent that the number of African elephants has already reached alarmingly low levels. Worse still, the eco-system of the Earth is deteriorating as a result of human activities. To specify, natural vegetation in woods and forests is cleared to create space where communities, shops, schools and car parks are constructed, the aftermath of which is that animals lose habitats and are forced to migrate. Also, due to the use of chemicals---shampoos, washing powders, fertilizers and insecticides etc., water resources are seriously contaminated, which kills aquatic lives. Researches indicate that the acidity levels in the ocean will approach alarming levels in a few decades. Similarly, with more carbon dioxide released into the atmosphere, the icebergs in the polar regions are melting, thus threatening the survival of animals like the polar bear. (这里觉得文章太长了也可以不要)

Disturbing as the status quo may be, prompt actions on both governmental and communal levels will make it change for the better. On the part of the government, there is a need to draft laws in an effort to conserve wildlife on a legal level. Unlawful hunting and over-fishing ought to be banned and severely punished. Also, it is advisable that funds should be allotted to the establishment of nature reserve areas and animal sanctuaries where endangered species are free from predators, thus repopulating. As for individuals, it is imperative that we boycott animal products and raise awareness on animals rights and welfare.

To recapitulate, the fact that animals are endangered derives mainly from illegal hunting and the degradation of their habitats. As a response to such thorny problem, it is high time that actions, by both the authorities and members of the public, were taken to stop the problem from going worse.

These days more fathers stay at home and take care of their children while mothers go out to work. What could be the reasons for this? Do you think it is a positive or a negative development?

Certainly, more men today are looking after their children while their spouses take on the role of breadwinner. In this essay, I will explain the reasons for this and why I believe it is a positive trend.

There are, I feel, two primary causes. Firstly, women are increasingly achieving gender equality in many countries. By doing so, they are competing with men for jobs more often, this typically leads to more of them holding important positions and more males deciding to take on childcare duties. Secondly, in households where couples both work, the lowest earner invariably stays home to care for their children. For example, my cousin Chen, a chemical engineer in Beijing, is married to a partner at a global accounting firm who has a far higher salary, meaning that he performs the domestic chores, and this is arguably not uncommon today.

In my view, this change is positive. One reason for this is that it may well break down gender stereotypes. When fathers stay at home, society becomes more accustomed to men performing traditionally female roles, in turn potentially providing individuals with more freedom of choice. What this does is create a fairer society. Another is that it allows more women to develop their careers. Margaret Thatcher, for instance, the former Prime Minister of Britain, worked while her husband Dennis raised their children. As such, she was able to devote herself to politics, which ultimately enabled her to become the first female leader of the UK.

Overall, I believe there are some convincing reasons why more men today are looking after their children, and I think this is clearly positive.

独立练习题：

Juvenile delinquency is becoming more and more serious in modern society. Please discuss the causes and find out some possible solutions.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

In the past, people repaired broken items and continued to use them. But nowadays people throw away things that are broken. What are the causes of this phenomenon and what are its effects?

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

[illegible]

[illegible]
